LIST NO. 28

Terms:

Prices are in Canadian funds. Payment is due on delivery. We would appreciate payment from U.S. and overseas customers in bank draft or money order, if possible.

Due to rising costs in issuing catalogues, I shall be reducing my mailing list. Those of you that have not corresponded with me recently, and who wish to continue receiving my lists are respectfully asked to forward $3.00, which may be considered an annual fee. Catalogues are issued approximately three times a year. The aforementioned amount will be credited against first purchase in excess of $10.00.

An interesting note on York currency:

“Dear Mr. Baker:— I enjoy your little book a great deal and would gladly write an article for you for free if I knew anything worth writing about. However, let me tell you about something of my childhood.— I was raised along the shore of Lake Erie. When I was a child many prices among old people were calculated in shillings — however, the shillings were called York shillings and were 12 ½ cents. When I started taking questions in English money at school I was very puzzled. However I learned in time that the York shilling was really a New York shilling, and was based on the mexican real. The local store keeper showed me the 12 ½ cent mark on his computing scales. Almost all scales sold in this part of Ontario had this mark; I have a pair of scales made in Brantford on my store counter with this mark on the computer. ... With the coming of metric this will be only a memory. ... — L.W.”

class of the eighteenth century tokens. Copper mining commenced in this country at an early date; but of the company here noticed I have not been able to learn anything. It is likely one of a series of evanescent companies that worked the copper-bearing rocks north of Lake Huron. Copper mining in that region has been for many years intermittent. There seems never to have been any issue of this token for circulation, as no specimen has ever been met with here in change, nor do any of the older collections include an impression among their lists of rarities. The only known examples are proofs that have come from some English numismatist."

McLachlan also describes the British Settlement Kentucky mule and follows with this comment:

"This is a mule-piece, the obverse belonging to the Myddelton Kentucky token,— a coin struck no doubt for some English colonization society. This, like the former one, is rare, never having gone into general circulation; they both are really English trade tokens of the eighteenth century, and are no doubt from the hands of the same engraver, as are the one penny and one cent piece of Sierra Leone, to which they bear a close resemblance. Proofs of these latter coins are sold at from one to two shillings in London, while the copper company pieces bring from fifteen to twenty dollars. If the dies are still in existence, as the fact that these proof mule-pieces turn up so regularly would seem to indicate, they have been carefully manipulated, to keep up the price so well."

Dr. Joseph LeRoux, in 1882, published a small booklet, Complete Canadian Copper Coin Catalogue, listing the piece and the following year illustrated it in his "Numismatic Atlas for Canada". As I have seen neither of these works*, I cannot comment on their accuracy, however, in the 1892 edition of his Canadian Coin Cabinet, his description follows Sandham, errors and all. His illustration is very crude but strangely, on it DIVITIAS is spelled correctly and CIRCUMFERREMUS spelled CIRCUMFERRIMUS. Dr. LeRoux was not renowned for his numismatic accuracy!

James Atkins, a British writer, in 1889 described and illustrated the piece correctly in The Coins and Tokens of the Possessions and Colonies of the British Empire.

P. Napoleon Breton has influenced Canadian token collecting more than any other individual. In 1890 he published a small illustrated catalogue of Canadian tokens of which he claimed to have sold 5,000 copies. This prompted him to publish in 1894 his illustrious Popular Illustrated Guide to Canadian Coins, Medals, &c. &c. from which tokens are universally numbered. Unfortunately, the book is full of errors, many of which have been blindly copied by others.

The Copper Company halfpenny, numbered 721, is very crudely illustrated following Sandham's and LeRoux' spelling errors in the legend. He comments as follows:

"This is the first coin struck for Canada after the conquest. As all known specimens of this piece are proofs, we may conclude that it was never issued for circulation and that the dies are probably in the hands of some collector who issues specimens from time to time so as not to break the price."

* Both the 1882 Catalogue of LeRoux and his Numismatic Atlas have followed Sandham's spelling "CIRCUMFERREMUS". (Editor's note).

Thus he reiterates the concern McLachlan had that the coin was surreptitiously struck and released to the market. Not true! But it foretold an unfortunate incident that has brought confusion and indignity to Canadian numismatics.

The May, 1894 issue of the Numismatist carried the following advertisement:

RARE PROOF HALF PENNY OF COPPER COMPANY
UPPER CANADA
Dated 1794

The original dies of this excessively rare and beautiful coin have recently been discovered and are in my possession. On the obverse is a recumbent figure of Neptune holding a trident, the date 1794 below and the inscription FERTILITATEM etc. On the reverse ONE-HALF-PENNY, Copper Company of Upper Canada. Only a very few specimens of this coin are known to exist, and I have therefore had struck off a limited number of proof pieces, viz: 12 specimens in silver and 50 specimens in bronze. The dies being in perfect preservation these coins are as brilliant and fine as the rare originals. Price in silver 10 dollars, and in bronze 5 dollars. To be obtained only from

J. ROCHELLE THOMAS
Granville Chambers, Orchard Street
PORTMAN SQUARE, LONDON, ENGLAND.

Antiquarian and Medallist to Her Majesty the Queen and Royal Family.

J. Rochelle Thomas issued as well a small card carrying similar advertising to his clientele during the spring of 1894.

That he had the original dies as stated, reinforced by McLachlan's and Breton's stated fears, was at the time generally supposed to be true. It has been a subject for confusion since.

Dr. W.T.R. Marvin of Boston immediately protested Thomas' activity in a scathing letter to the American Journal of Numismatics. He says in part, "It is by such mercenary and much to be deplored proceedings as this, that the science is besmirched. ... We are of the opinion that those who value and esteem the science ... will carefully withhold their countenance from the proposed enterprise of Mr. J. Rochelle Thomas and decline to purchase his "Brummagem" wares. ..."

When Spinks reproduced Dr. Marvin's letter in the Numismatic Circular, they were obliged to publish a retraction and, according to information given to McLachlan, make payment of a considerable sum. Why this was so is difficult to rationalize, for Dr. Marvin said nothing untrue and Thomas' ethics are certainly in question as we shall see later.

S.S. Heal, a well known Canadian collector, in a letter to Mehl's Numismatic Monthly, June, 1909, shows a confusion with the Thomas "restrikes" and, with Breton's speculation that the originals were surreptitiously issued. The imminent British author S.H. Hamer, in a communication to this same magazine, October, 1909, tells of a Copper Company and two Myddelton originals, one silver and one bronze, being sold in Sotheby's George Deakin sale, 1899, to none other than J.R. Thomas! In the same sale was a pewter "restrike" described as "struck from the second original die". Hamer suggests that only the reverse was new.

Some of this confusion was dispelled, at least until it was forgotten or ignored, in an article "The Copper Tokens of Upper Canada" by R.W. McLachlan in the American Journal of Numismatics, 1915. In it he explores all aspects of the Copper Company Halfpenny which can only be summarized here.

McLachlan denounces the piece as "nothing more than an English eighteenth century trade token, issued as a speculation by an English coin dealer, for sale to collectors." Why he speculates thus so positively is unclear. Strangely, he misspells CIRCUMFERREMUS as CIRCUMFEREMUS in his description.

He summarizes what little he could learn of the designer Ponthon; that he was employed by the Soho and Lutwyche mints, that the Universal British Directory of 1790-5 or 1816 does not mention this name, that the surname (perhaps he meant Christian name) of Ponthon has never been discovered and that his signature appears only on tokens either undated or dated 1794. From this he concludes:

"... it would seem that Ponthon came, like a meteor, from out the unknown, shone forth in all the brilliancy of fully developed art, and passed out again after a short and dazzling career of one years' duration.

"I would like here to suggest the theory that Ponthon was a name assumed by some celebrated medallist artist, to hide his identity. Most likely in the year 1794 being short of artistic work on medals, he was induced to undertake the engraving of despised token dies, and not caring to use his own signature on such insignificant work, assumed the name Ponthon. But evidently although the task was not congenial, he did not shirk it, for all his tokens display an artistic genius which make his pieces the finest of the fine series of eighteenth century tokens."

He suggests Ponthon's idea of the river-god came from the Glasgow token of 1791.

In his article McLachlan describes the J.R. Thomas incident in considerable detail. About Thomas' production, he says:

This was not even a restrike, but, to put it mildly, a modern imitation with many minor differences, on both obverse and reverse, in which the finer art touches of the original designer are wanting."

He also points out that Thomas issued gold, silver, aluminum and pewter specimens contrary to his promise in his advertisement.

The interest in Canadian numismatics plummeted to virtually nothing in the 1920's, '30's and '40's, however a strange little book appeared in 1933 entitled The Romance of Canada's Money by Paul Montgomery. The author states in the preface it was an enlargement of an article in the April, 1932 issue of the Bankers Journal for use of schoolteachers, students of finance, bank officials and others.

Paul Montgomery is in fact the nom de plume of one Lyman Bruce Jacques about whom I have been able to discover nothing, particularly why he used a pen name. His book reveals more romance than numismatics. It is written in a lavish style much given to exciting myths and blatant error; eg., Vexators issued in 1808, holey dollars in the 1830's, Canada having two mints in 1933.

Montgomery describes how John Graves Simcoe, upon appointment of Governor (sic) of Upper Canada authorized the striking of a distinctive Upper Canada coin. A committee was formed, dies prepared and in 1794 a number of very fine halfpenny pieces were struck and exhibited to the Legislature. Montgomery recounts that Simcoe sent specimens and a letter of request for circulation to the Home Office. The request was refused.

Where Montgomery got his information is not stated. He even notes correctly that the records of the early Upper Canada Legislature were lost in a fire in 1813. It is amusing to note that he illustrates his book with a Thomas reproduction.

In the 1940's J.D. Ferguson and Howard Kurth each wrote magazine articles including references to the Copper Company piece.

In the May-June, 1951 issue of W. Raymonds "The Coin Collectors Journal", John J. Ford presented the most complete analysis of the Copper Company yet written. Virtually all of the literature cited above was reviewed by Mr. Ford in his well written article.

His conclusions - 1) That the Copper Company of Upper Canada Halfpenny is in fact a definite pattern for an authentic Canadian copper coinage. This seems based largely on Montgomery's recount of Simcoe's involvement which Ford quotes almost verbatim. 2) The Thomas productions are outright forgeries based on the variance in the reverse dies. 3) The Myddelton patterns as well as the Copper Company pieces are strictly contemporary and the mule probably an early authentic restrike. 4) The original dies were lost or destroyed. 5) The "Copper Company" inscription seems to be based on the exploration of the copper mines to the north of Lake Superior and Huron.

In the New Netherlands 60th Auction Sale, December, 1968, lot 56, Ford reverses his field somewhat. He therein states "... it is now believed that the Thomas restrikes are impressions from unused but rusted and impaired dies originally cut circa 1794 by a house engraver at Bolton & Watts Soho Manufactory." He speculates that the dies were among those obtained by W.J. Taylor in 1848 which he used in an extensive restriking program. He states that probably the dies were acquired by Thomas who had them refurbished and used to restrike his specimens. Ford does not give any evidence for this having actually happened and raises some serious questions that would make it seem improbable, e.g., Forrer in his "Biographical Dictionary of Medalists" attributes nothing to Taylor after 1887.

In about 1953 J.E. Charlton first published his well known annual "Standard Catalogue of Canadian Coins, Tokens and Paper Money". He states:

"These pieces were never seen in Canada until about 1870. They were struck in England during the period of eighteenth century copper tokens as a speculation by coin dealers. The story that they were struck on Governor Simcoe's orders has no foundation. Restrikes have oval O's in COPPER COMPANY; the originals have round O's."

Robert Willey, a prolific Canadian author, first described the Copper Company halfpenny in the June Canadian Numismatic Journal. He described them as having long been taken by collectors to be patterns struck on Governor (sic) Simcoe's order for a proposed coinage, but McLachlan showed them to be English tokens struck for collectors. He reiterated this in an article in the Whitman Numismatic Journal, September, 1966, adding that in 1894 another pair of dies was discovered and specimens struck off.

In the 1971 edition of Whitman's "Coins of Canada" by J.A. Haxby and R.C. Willey, Willey changed his thinking to their probability as patterns for a copper coinage for Upper Canada, however he also promotes the theory of their being collector pieces.

Using this voluminous and confusing bibliography as a backdrop, let us examine each of the questions posed earlier.

St. Jacques, 15th Jan. 1929

Dear Mr. Ferguson,

I am much pleased to read you. Thanks for your congratulation!

Am glad to learn that ~~your~~ my book on coin found interesting to you, and that you are kind to the Papineau family. I also notice that your ancestor Sen. Lamb was a great patriot!

Notice that you have C. 8 among your Deux-sous. It is quite a scarce one, though not as much as C. 13. C. 48 in fine condition is rather rare. Yes, there are at least 3 new varieties in the Bouquet-sous. All very rare.

I have Cbr. 47 Rev. 41. Only 3 known so far.

Enclosed please find a list of my monographs on Canadian Tokens. My last: "The Substantive Tokens of Lower Canada (Prov. of Quebec)" gives a fine history of the famous coin-ture Gleichen - sachs - also also give an idea why the people called these sous = "Papineaus".

No, I never thought I would issue a token with ^{my} name on. Perhaps I should have done so!

Am glad to learn you enjoyed a good trip to Ottawa, and visited Mr. Lambert. I duly know him through his Clark. I think he was the man who issued the coins of the Bridge Tokens. He must have a fine collection of Communion tokens, since he had only 2 varieties!
