A GENERALLY UNKNOWN MEDAL OF WOLFE

Monuments and paintings dedicated to Wolfe's memory are prolific. The absence of commemorative portrait medals by comparison is conspicuous, particularly when comparing the profusion of issues to some of his contemporaries, viz., Vernon and Boscawen.

The photograph is of a medal in the collection of John J. Ford, Jr. who kindly agreed to its reproduction. The same medal is illustrated in a book by J. Clarence Webster entitled, "Wolfe and the artists, a study of his portraiture", published in Toronto, 1930. Strangely enough, the author was only aware of this rare medal, making no mention of the well known and artistic "Death of Wolfe" medal (Betts 422, Br. 32). In 1866 the Art Union of London commemorated Benjamin West with one of its medals. The reverse depicts his famous death of Wolfe scene. Two other specimens are known of the rare Wolfe medal, illustrated above. One was sold in the Stickney Sale, 1907, Lot 2919, and the price realized was Thirty three dollars. The medal was described as e.f., but the plate shows either heavy scratches or die breaks through the face, nose, and through the hand. If what appear to be scratches on the Stickney specimen are die breaks, this could account for the rarity of the medal, as the ugly appearance would likely force its withdrawal from the market. Henry Chapman (cataloguer of the Stickney Sale) indicated that he knew of another specimen, and that with a piece broken from the edge. The poor workmanship is much the same as those produced for Boscawen's achievements and possibly Edward or his brother Christopher Pinchbeck may have been responsible for their issuance.

General description: Obv. THE BRAVE GENERAL WOLF WAS KILLED ($\frac{1}{2}$ profile of Wolfe to right, sword drawn in right hand, pointing with left hand). In exergue, SEP 18 1759. Rev. BEFORE QUEBEC (View of Quebec; in foreground, two small ships between man-of-war; three soldiers in a row on shore.) copper. 37 mm.

LES FRÈRES DU CANADA (The Brethren of Canada) – 1786

The first French speaking secret society in Montreal, and probably in Canada, appears to be one called "Les Frères du Canada" (the Brethren of Canada). Its members were recruited amongst the French-Canadians, the French and the Scottish. We first hear of its existence through an article which appeared in the "Canadian Antiquarian" of 1873 (p. 63), entitled: "An engraved silver medal of the Frères du Canada", 1786.

The article was signed by Sir G.-Duncan Gibb, of London, and starts with a description of the medal which is shield-shaped and found on the seal to be described below. One side of the medal reads: "Frères du Canada, 1786", and on the other side are engraved: top, an eye, centre, two hands and the word "inséparable" at bottom.

The author tells us that this medal was given to him by his uncle, major George Gibb, of Sorel. He had inherited it from a Scottish officer who must have been a member of this society. This officer was in Montreal in 1786 and died there about 1811. The information about the first owner of the medal can be easily applied to Joseph Provan, one of the signers of the minutes reproduced below. Scottish by birth, he died in Montreal, on April 1, 1814, at the age of 55, and a certain B. Gibb was present at his funeral.

Sir Duncan Gibb adds that he does not know anything about the society, but he supposes, with reason, that its centre must have been in Montreal and that it was founded in 1786.

Later, amongst documents of the Court House of Montreal, we have been able to locate the interesting minutes of the election of a president of this mysterious society. The document reads as follows:

"At a meeting of the Frères du Canada held in Sullivan's Café, this twenty-second day of February seventeen hundred and ninety.—

To Brother Jean Guill. de Lisle, Hail.

We have appointed and chosen, we appoint and instruct you by these presents, "Master of the Frères du Canada", etc. of our order; Wishing that you enjoy the prerogatives attached to that dignity, and we wish moreover that the presents will serve anywhere they may be necessary. Because such is our wish.

Given at Montreal, the 22d of February seventeen hundred and ninety, under the seal of Our Order and the Fifth of our Institu ...

By order of the assembly, [signed:] Herse, Keeper of the Seal, Louis Lardy, Jno Lumsden, Jos Provan, J.C. Leprohon, Ph. de Rocheblave, Jos. Roy, Pierre Marassi."

To the left bottom of the document there is a quite curious seal, exceptionally well engraved and well preserved. It is circular and measures exactly one inch and three lines diameter. Along the top curve is inscribed "Les Frères du Canada", 1786. Beneath these words there is a pointed shield of which the central top point terminates in a clover or a cross. Inside of the shield can be seen, on top, an eye surrounded by rays, centre, two interlocking hands and, bottom, the word "inséparable". The shield is surrounded by laurel and palm branches.

The man who was appointed to be president by his comrades was a notary by profession, like his father, the surveyor-notary, Jean De Lisle de la Cailletterre, who was sent to England by the Canadians, in 1783, with Messrs. Adhémar de Saint-Martin and W.D. Powell in order to demand a constitutional government for Canada. Moreover, Jean-Guillaume De Lisle had the advantage of being registrar of the vestry of Notre-Dame of Montréal since 1788 and he retained this latter charge till 1798.

Two of the signers of the minutes, Lumsden and Provan, came from Scotland, Louis Lardy and Jacques-Clément Herse appear to have originated in France. As far as Pierre Marassi and J.-C. Leprohon are concerned, they were sons of French soldiers who had married French-Canadians in 1760.

At this period, sieur Herse (married to a French-Canadian, Marguerite Lacroix), had a lucrative business in l'Acadie, near Saint-Jean d'Iberville. Messrs. Rocheblave and Marassi were fur-traders in the west.

The "Bulletin des Recherches Historiques" for 1911 (p. 96) has asked a question which could have some connection with the Frères du Canada.

A correspondent says: "I see in Clavel's work 'Histoire pittoresque de la Franc-Maçonnerie' (Picturesque History of Freemasonry) that in 1787, there existed a masonic sect in Canada known under the name of Francs-Maçons Régénérés (Regenerated Freemasons). Did this lodge pertain to the French or English rites? Where was it located? Does one know any members of this lodge?" Nobody answered the question. We have had someone ask Mr. J. Ross Robertson, editor of the "Evening Telegram" of Toronto and historian of Freemasonry in Canada, whether he had any information concerning the regenerated freemasons and the Frères du Canada. We have been told that he thinks this sect and this society have nothing in common with the English rites. On the other hand, Mr. Aegidius Fauteux, conservator of the Bibliothèque Saint-Sulpice of Montréal, has, during a speech held before the Montreal Historical Society, given details about a branch of the Frères du Canada which existed in Quebec in 1788. The scholarly speaker believes that the Frères du Canada and the Francs-Maçons Régénérés were one and the same order. This is quite possible.

Couldn't it also be that a society modelled after the freemasonry, but only having political intent, was called the "Frères du Canada". Could there not be a relationship between this society and the anti-British or separatist movement that French emissaries tried to create in our country, at the end of the eighteenth century?

Another question: does this society have anything in common with a lodge called "Frères du Canada" which was founded in Quebec, on June 24, 1816, by the hon. Claude Dénéchaud, grand provincial master of the order of Ancient Masons of England? This lodge had for master, at its founding, Mr. F.-X. Perrault and it still existed in 1822 (see "Freemasonry in Quebec" by Graham, p. 103, 137, 180 and 181).

The Frères du Canada badges are likely the first of a fraternal nature in Canada, excluding of course the famous Beaver Club medals. Although the date 1786 is engraved on one of the badges, documents record the establishment of Les Frères du Canada as being on the 3rd of June, 1816, the dissolution occurring some time in the 1830s. They were known as "Frères du Canada", no. 23, U:A:F:M:, L.C. On the 24th of June 1816, with Sussex Lodge, no. 22, they laid the cornerstone of St. John's (Anglican) Church, Que. With four other lodges, (Sussex, St. Andrews, Albion, & Merchants) they laid the cornerstone of the Wolfe & Montcalm monument on Nov. 15, 1827 at the invitation of the Governor-General.

In the 1925 Wilson Sale, Lot 652, two types of Les Frères du Canada badge were offered. The first is inscribed FRERES/ DU/ CANADA/ 1786. The reverse is inscribed, INSEPARABLE below clasped hands; above the clasped hands is what appears to be an eye within rays. The medal is shield shaped with a bar bearing a loop atop. The mark N.R. on this piece no doubt stands for Narcisse Roy, Quebec silversmith. The second medal makes no allusion to the society, the obverse bearing the inscription SACRED/ FRIENDSHIP. The reverse is similar, but not the same as the last. The pair of medals realized $9.50, certainly a price not indicative of their rarity.

BRETON 968, WELLINGTON PENNY: FACT OR FICTION?

The inclusion of a Wellington penny in Breton's catalogue (Br. 968), no copy of which is known to Canadian numismatists, has been the cause of some controversy as to its actual existence.

Perhaps the following notes will shed some light on the matter and explain why the coin is likely non-existent. In doing this it is necessary to get into the other three Wellington pennies, viz., Br. 970, the coin now labelled Br. 970a which is by far the scarcest of the group, and Br. 974.

The earliest recording that I have of the Wellington pennies is in Sharpe's catalogue of Sir George Chetwynd's collection. His numbers 22 & 23 on page 207 are specimens of Br. 970 with engrailed and milled edges. Number 24 is Br. 970a. The first work to include Wellingtons amongst the Canadian series is that of Sandham.¹ His doubtful number 34 is Br. 970.

The confusion appears to start with Leroux², in 1889, who, in his first edition, illustrates under number 796 the coin now more familiarly known as Br. 968. Breton's first catalogue³ published two years after the first Leroux edition, utilized the same cuts as Leroux and reiterates the error promulgated by the doctor but also includes Br. 970 and Br. 974. Leroux's second edition⁴ however did include these pieces under 807b (Br. 970) and 807c (Br. 974). In both cases the scarcer Br. 970a had been omitted.

Scott's catalogue⁵ from 1893, in the doubtful section, lists Br. 968 as their number 9, Br. 970 or Br. 970a as their number 91, and Br. 974 as their number 22. Breton thereafter popularized the mythical coin in his "Illustrated history of coins and tokens ..."

In 1889, Atkins⁶ published his well-known work. This further confused the issue, for, as well as listing Br. 970 (his number 206) and Br. 970a (his number 205), he described the following coin, his number 204: Obv. Laureated bust to left, laurel wreath under. FIELD MARSHALL WELLINGTON. Rev. Brit. seated. ONE PENNY TOKEN 1813. This is an entirely new piece again, the obverse being that of Br. 968, 970 or 970a; the reverse is that of Br. 984. Batty's⁷ description of the Wellington pennies tallies entirely with those given by Atkins, and includes, on Atkins' authority, the aforementioned unknown coin (Obv. 970/Rev. 984). He likewise omits Br. 974.

McLachlan, the dean of Canadian numismatics, listed Br. 970 only in his work published in 1886.⁸ His articles published in the *Canadian Antiquarian and Numismatic Journal*⁹ and the *Numismatist*¹⁰ both ignore the penny issues. According to McLachlan a report submitted by the Earl of Gosford, Gov. Gen. of Canada to the Colonial Secretary of London in 1837 indicated that Canadians were "accustomed to assign to any copper coin the value of a halfpenny only." Gosford therefore suggested that the government permit the banks to issue coins only in that denomination. Obviously, the Colonial Secretary chose to ignore that suggestion as penny coins were issued by all of the banks. This rather weakens McLachlan's argument that Wellington pennies should be excluded from the Canadian series.

The last significant British writer to catalogue the Wellington pennies was W.J. Davis¹¹ who listed four pennies. His Not-Local number 32 is Br. 970, number 33 is Br. 970a, number 34 is Br. 968, and number 35 is Br. 974. Interestingly enough, he gives both Br. 968 and 970a an R-R rating, the first to indicate a rarity difference. Breton and Leroux who also gave rarity/price guides gave no indication that Br. 968 was considered to be scarce. Indeed, Leroux gave a lower rating to Br. 968 (R-4) than to Br. 970 and 974 which had a rating of R-5 and R-6 respectively!

The most comprehensive listing of the Wellington coppers is the monograph by Courteau.¹² His number 25, the inclusion of which was criticised by McLachlan, is Br. 968 of which he claimed never to have seen a specimen. An annotated copy of Judge Lees' copy of Breton bears some rather interesting notes. F.W. Mason claimed to have had two examples of the coin. Baldwin, the London coin dealer also attested to its existence. On the other hand, the specimen in the W.W.C. Wilson Sale¹³ lot 624 (2 pieces described as Br. 968 and Br. 970) turned out to be Br. 970a. In one of Renaud's copies of the Wilson sale this information is further borne out, Renaud having been an astute coin man, particularly in the Canadian series. The 1926 and 1927 Wilson sales, lots 118 and 95 respectively, are described as "type of Br. 968". Obviously, Wayte Raymond was made aware of the error after the erroneous listing in his first Wilson sale. Finally, a note in Wickham's copy of Breton regarding Br. 968 says "non-existent."
