

We will buy Canadian & Newfoundland coins and notes under the following conditions:

1. They must have clear dates and lettering, be free of holes, scratches or other form of mutilation and not badly worn. An exception will be made in the case of rare dates, but the premium will be less.
2. We will pay more than list prices for material in new condition, and will pay a premium for many dates not listed, if in that condition.
3. We will pay less than list prices for material that is not in good saleable condition. Please do not send badly worn coins and notes for which we offer only a small premium.
4. Cash payment will be made promptly for your consignment.
5. All enquiries must include 5¢ postage for a reply. A stamped addressed envelope is preferred.
6. References - Canadian Numismatic Association; Toronto Coin Club.

The purpose of this list is to provide authoritative information for the many people who are mis-informed by rumors into saving or looking for coins that have little or no premium value, or for coins that do not even exist. It will also prove to be of real value to those who handle any quantity of currency in their daily employment. Many bank tellers and others receive hundreds of dollars yearly in premiums for coins and notes we purchase. Recently we paid $300 for a single 1921 Canadian half dollar, that some person used in purchasing car tickets in Toronto and was recognized as valuable by a T.T.C. Cashier. A motorist used a similar coin to purchase gasoline at a London Ontario Service Station recently, and the informed Service Station operator also made a handsome profit. In the course of a year we receive thousands of letters asking for information, and we list some of the most frequently asked questions, and the correct answers:

1. Did the Canadian Mint make a mistake on the 1951 commemorative nickel? Are they being called in? No, there was no mistake. This coin commemorates the two hundredth anniversary of the isolation of the metal nickel by a Swedish chemist in 1751. Over 8 million of these five cent pieces were issued, the Mint is not withdrawing them from circulation, and they will never have more than a nominal value.
2. Are the 1942 Beaver brass nickels valuable? No, the supply of this coin exceeds the demand of collectors, so it has only a nominal premium value. Over 3 million of these five cent pieces were issued, and large quantities are in the hands of the public.
3. Are all Canadian 5¢ silver pieces valuable? No. We pay $35.00 or more for the 1921 date, but sell the 1920 and some other dates for 10¢ each.
4. Will a Ford car be given away for a certain date or dates of Lincoln Head cents? No. The highest price paid for the rare 1914 D cent in brilliant uncirculated condition was under $100; so any of these cents from circulation would only have a fraction of this value; certainly nothing near the value of anything but a toy Ford car. In any event, the Ford Motor Company is no more interested in Lincoln cents than General Motors or any other manufacturer. All 1943 Lincoln cents were made of zinc coated steel, and with over a billion issued, they will never be valuable. Some individuals have claimed to have copper cents of this date, but such coins have been copper plated privately, and will not pass the magnet test.
5. Is the U.S. Columbia half dollar of 1892 or 1893 valuable? No. A misleading article appeared recently in a weekly publication saying that such a coin had sold for $10,000, but this was really a donation, as these coins were offered to the public at the same time for $1.00 each, the same price we charge.
6. Is there any chance of finding a U.S. 1913 Liberty head nickel in circulation? No. Some U.S. Coin Dealers offer thousands of dollars for this coin, but you will never find one. Only six of these coins were minted, and none was ever placed in circulation. They are all in private collections.
