This work is dedicated to the man I consider my mentor, the late Leslie C. Hill (1916-2017) who had encouraged me over many years and set a fine example with his catalogues of British Columbia and Yukon tokens. He has also shared his information without reservation. The work is based on Leslie C. Hill & Scott A. Simpson's Yukon Numismatica (1990). RAG

Other contributors: the late Tony Thomson, the late Donald M. Stewart, the late Ralph Burry, the late Brian Denman, David Byard, The National Currency Collection (Bank of Canada), Dick Hanscom (Alaska Rare Coins), Joe Isibelli, Warren Baker, Norm Robidoux, Ed Mannings, Stan Sherstobitoff, Tim Saunders, Al Munro, Duff Malkin, and John Humphry.

Introduction by Ronald Greene

For a full extensive introduction refer to The British Columbia Token Database Introduction by Ronald Greene. Perusing the 'The British Columbia Token Database Introduction' will help you understand the premises upon which the original database and this current Yukon edition with images were formulated.

Technical Information

The database program used is Microsoft Access 2013. The digital version with images uses Microsoft Word 2019 and the website version has been converted to .pdf for addition to the Canadian Numismatic Resource website (www.cnr-rnc.ca). The intention is to update the database periodically as long as we are able to do so. There is no intention of producing a paper based version.

1. Catalogue Number

Generally these are numbers assigned in Leslie C. Hill's & Scott A. Simpson's 1990 listing. All tokens are given a 'Y' plus four digit number for the issuer plus a letter for the token. Where we have added a number after the letter that identifies the token, such as Y1160a2, it implies a piece with some minor variation, such as a plastic token missing the reverse printing or an off-metal striking.

We have included a number of cardboard tokens. To differentiate card tokens from tickets we have included only those pieces which we believe were intended for more than one-time use, which most paper/card tickets were not.

2. Category

One should not feel obligated to collect everything listed, only what is of interest. The original database allows us to sort the tokens by category if desired and any given token is entered into one of the following categories:

advertising	some commemoratives fall into this category. At some point a commemorative piece might be better described as a medal, rather than an advertising token. The boundary between is fuzzy and for the time being arbitrary. A piece is certainly considered an advertising token when the commercial aspect is pre-eminent
bakery	denominated in loaves of bread
bar	tokens good for a drink at a club (as opposed to drink tokens used by saloons or other commercial establishments which are listed under trade). Tokens used at beer gardens, events, and promotions by non-profit groups are included in this category
gaming	pieces used for gaming, generally without value away from the table, and the newer slot machine tokens, some of which are also valid at the tables. Some game chips bear so little information that they are unidentifiable as to issuer and have not been listed
machine	early slot machine tokens without expressed denominations and other tokens used in machines, lockers, etc., but not in arcades, casinos, golf ball dispensers, telephones, parking machines, or car washes, all of which have their own category
souvenir	all so-called trade dollars, and the related off-metal strikings. We have relied upon Serge Pelletier's work for listing a number of minor varieties and restrikes. Except for Nanaimo and Port Alberni where we have conflicting information, we have also accepted his quantities
telephone	pay telephones
trade	generally has a value expressed on the token, and used for transactions
miscellaneous	any token that does not fit into one of the above categories [abbreviated as misc].

3. Issuer

Provides the issuers' names, which in some cases are not on the tokens, so that we can access the listing by issuer, e.g. Royal Canadian Legion where only the Branch # is on the token. We have abbreviated the proper names of service clubs here to conserve space, e.g. Elks 536, although the listings are alphabetized under the proper name, i.e. Benevolent Protective Order of Elks. It has been our standard practice that if both a company name and an individual's name are on the token we list under the company name.

4. Obverse

Generally a line description of the side where the issuer's name appears. Regarding the line descriptions, items shown in brackets are either an image such as an (eagle), a (logo), or (an uncertain description), which should be easily differentiated. Where we have run out of room in our original database field size we indicated omitted text by three dots (...). Square brackets [] insert our comments, such as [sic] to note an error in spelling.

5. Reverse

Generally the denomination side. If the reverse is blank, the token is referred to as (uniface). If the reverse is the same as the obverse, the token is referred to as (bifacial).

6. Additional

Further information to describe or differentiate varieties, etc. Mint marks are mentioned where present. See below for a general discussion of Mints and Mint Marks.

7. Dates of use

The dates refer to the period the tokens were used, when known. If the dates of use are not known, the dates given refer to the years of operation of the issuer, indicated by a “z” after the dates.

8. Material

Using standard symbols. Metal tokens are usually embossed (i.e. raised letters) and are marked incuse if the design is sunk into the surface. On the other hand, plastic and fibre tokens are usually incuse, and are marked embossed if the design is raised.

9. Shape

Using standard abbreviations, shapes are described and illustrated below.

10. Size in millimetres

Measurements originally were to the nearest ½ mm. We have converted measurements to a single decimal place, i.e. 38.2, but individual pieces can and do vary in diameter, especially plastic pieces which do not have the dimensional stability of a metallic piece. Loops are only measured if they are integral to the piece, not if they are added. Laminated pieces (LP) that we have seen often vary in size from one to the next. We have taken the measurements of those pieces in our collections. For round pieces we measure across and also up-down. We record the larger dimension. e.g. 38.32↔, 38.37 ↑ is recorded as 38.4, 38.32↔, 38.34 ↓ is recorded as 38.3.

11. Have

[] A space intended for the user's convenience for recording their own holdings.

12. Number known

We use the standard Rarity Scale where larger quantities are known, thus:

R10	one known	R5	21 to 30 known
R9	two known	R4	31 to 40 known
R8	three to five known	R3	over 40 known
R7	six to ten known	R2	obsolete, not destroyed
R6	11 to 20 known	R1	currently in use

However, for the rarer pieces we have used Les Hill's method which we find more useful. 8/7 means 8 known, of which 7 are in collectors' hands and the 8th is in a museum or institutional collection; 2 means 2 known. These figures should be taken advisedly as there has been a lot of swapping since Les Hill's last census and some tokens may have been counted more than once and others missed. If known, the number of pieces struck is shown.

Modern plastic tokens, particularly dairy tokens, were produced in large numbers which were often or generally destroyed when the dairy closed. Casino chips are often withdrawn and replaced with later issues. The earlier issues cease to have any further value at the casino when replaced.

13. Comments

This field is where we have added anything else of interest that doesn't fit in any other field. References to articles about the tokens are given here. Transactions is the Transactions of the Canadian Numismatic Research Society, a publication that was available to non-members at the end of each year. It was published from 1965 until 2001 and 2013 until 2022. CeeTee is the common nickname for The Canadian Token, published by the Canadian Association of Token Collectors from 1972 to 2001. In 2002 the Transactions and the CeeTee were amalgamated as Numismatica Canada, which is abbreviated as NumisCan. CNJ is the Journal of the Canadian Numismatic Association (since 2008 The Royal Canadian Numismatic Association). Alaskan Token Collector & Polar Numismatist, published by Alaska Rare Coins, is shown as ATC&PN. Where articles are repeated we have shown only the more widely circulated source.

Conventions

We have followed a convention of capitalizing the initial letter of each word of a line description, thus Good For 25¢ In Trade, but where the word cents as in Good For 25 cents In Trade; of as in Loaf of Bread, or as in Good For 1 Drink or Cigar, appears in a much smaller font than the other words, we have indicated this by using lower case for the initial letter.

We have not used the standard chemical symbols for elements since many tokens are made of alloyed materials which do not have standard abbreviations. Rather, we have used the Standard Format & Symbols as adopted by the Canadian Numismatic Research Society in 1968 with additional symbols.

Mints and Mint Marks

Not all makers signed their tokens, but some tokens carry mint names or marks:

- Sherritt Mint the mint mark used is a hexagon with a horizontal line through it that resembles the Greek letter Theta. We have used the character "ø" to indicate the Sherritt Mint mark. Pieces which are 32 to 33 mm in diameter and magnetic (N, NBS or AS) are generally Sherritt Mint products. Production of tokens ceased August 31, 1995.
- Vaas & Co. a Seattle stamp maker that also made some B.C. and Yukon tokens, active 1890's until the early 1930's. Their name is on some tokens, and others have unique ornaments believed to be used solely by Vaas & Co. (NumisCan, 2024, pp 5 -7)

SYMBOLS AND ABBREVIATIONS

MATERIALS	Standard	(written all upper case)
Aluminum	A
Aureate Steel	AS
Bimetallic	BM	(Bronze in an Aluminum ring unless otherwise stated)
	BM-(inner material)-(outer)	e.g. BM-N-B = Nickel in a Brass outer ring
Brass	B	(yellowish in colour), (includes so-called "Commercial Bronze")
Bronze	BZ	(reddish in colour)
Card	CA
Celluloid	CE
Clay	CY
Clay with Metal Inlay	CMI	(a Stainless Steel inlay unless otherwise stated)
Copper	C	(Bronze is almost identical in appearance and is more likely to be used. If we do not know we call the material Bronze)
German Silver	GS	(circa WWI renamed Nickel Silver)
Gold	G
Ivory	Ivory
Nickel	N	(magnetic, when used as a planchet) (when used as a plating material the appearance is usually a shiny finish)
Nickel Silver	NS	(non-magnetic)
Nickel Bonded Steel	NBS	(magnetic)
Plastic solid	P(colour)	e.g. Pr = red plastic translucent	tP	e.g. tPr = translucent red plastic
laminated	LP	(material 2 or 3 ply, with different colours)
Silver	S
Wood	W
White Metal	WM	(Pewter and other Tin based alloys)

FINISHES

Plated	(plating material) p (under-material)	e.g. SpBZ = Silver plated Bronze
	(if under-material not known)	e.g. Sp_ = Silver plated
Antiqued	a(Material)	e.g. aB = antiqued Brass
Enamelled	e(Material)	e.g. eBZ = enamelled Bronze

MIXTURES

Clay game chips with inserts of various colours CY(main colours), (not all colours are listed)

Many cataloguers have used White Metal (WM) as a catch-all and have listed NS, CN and other materials as White Metal. We have restricted the use of WM to Tin based alloys.

COLOURS	Standard	(written all lower case)
Azure	az
Black	k
Blue	b
Brown	bn
Cream	-	(see ivory)
Gold	go
Green	g
Grey	gy
Ivory	iv	(creamy or yellowish white)
Lavender	la
Lilac	li
Pink	pi
Purple	p	(includes maroon and mauve)
Magenta	mg
Orange	o
Red	r
Silver	s
White	w
Yellow	y

Colours shown as: material/letters and design
 e.g. Pr/w is a red plastic piece with white letters
 CEr,y/w,k is a celluloid piece. If two-sided, red obv., yellow rev., with white letters on obv., and black letters on rev.
 However, if uniface, then w and k letters on obv.

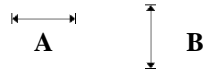

MISCELLANEOUS

obv	obverse	(generally name side of token)
rev	reverse	(generally denomination side)
incuse	letters, design cut into token embossed	letters, design raised
uniface	one side is blank, or only the maker's name, in small letters, is shown on one side
bifacial	both sides are identical
/	change of line
()	description of logo, object or design
...	description omitted
[]	descriptive comment	i.e. [sic] e.g. "Bakrey [sic]" indicates misspelling of the word "Bakery"
c/s	counterstamped, a number or letter punched into the piece
ø	the available symbol closest to the Sherritt Mint Mark which is a hexagon with horizontal bar, similar in appearance to the Greek letter Theta

Number known/available 7 / 6 total known (including museums)/available to collectors, in this case 7 known, 1 in a museum, 6 in collector's hands

SHAPES

Standard

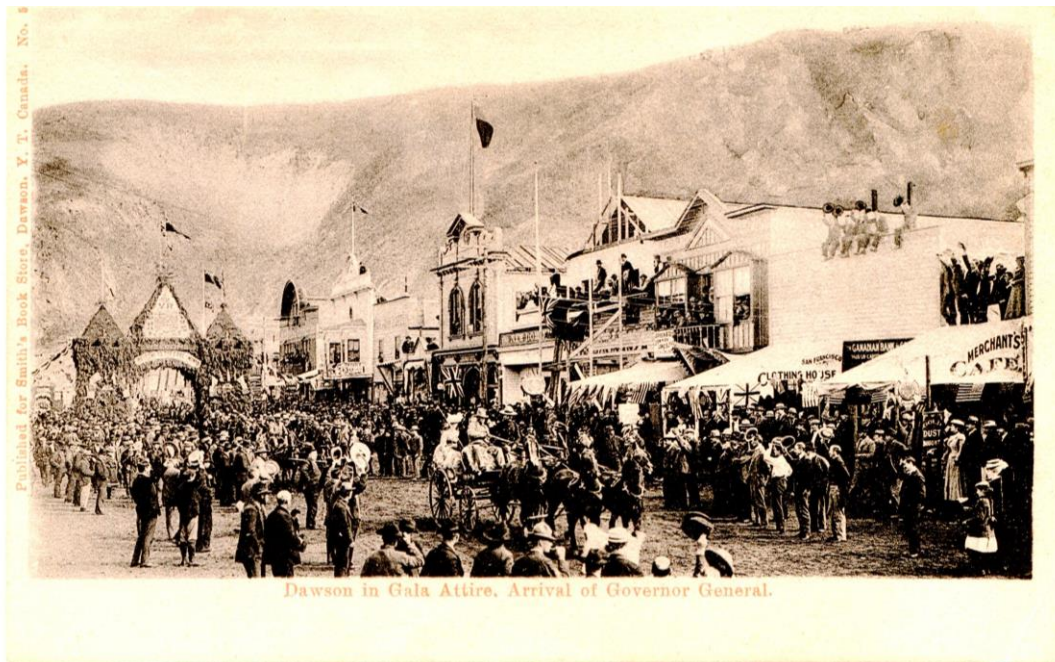

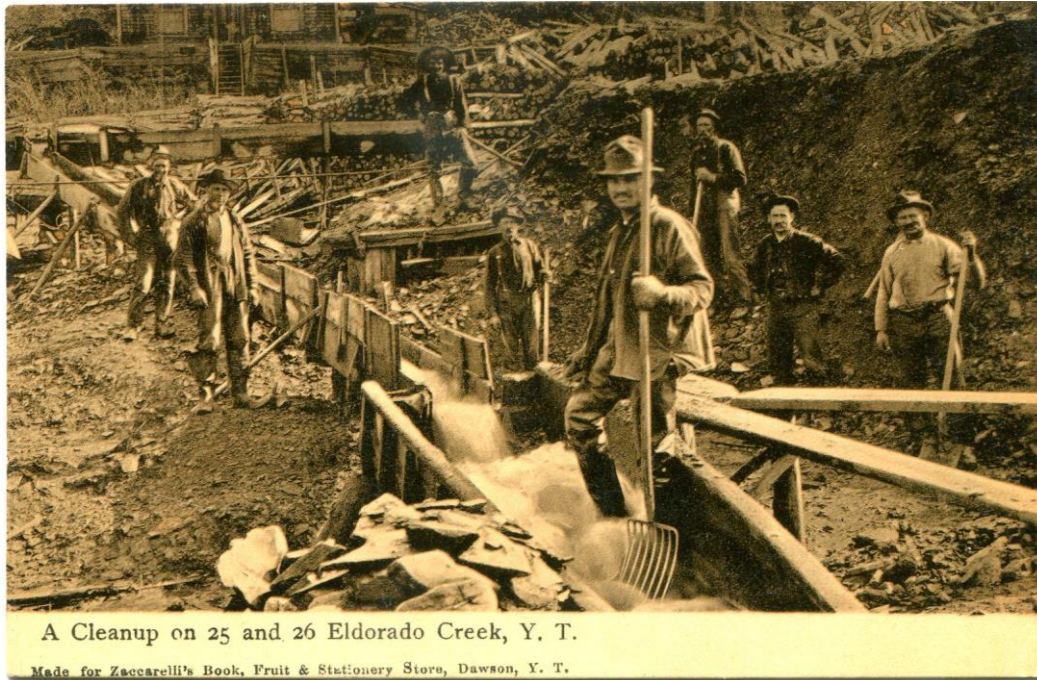

Hexagonal	Hx
Octagonal	O
Oval	V
Rectangular	Re
Round	R
Round, with a central hole	Rh
Round, with an off-centre hole	Rp
Scalloped	Sc	(8 assumed, suffix number added if not 8)
Square	S
holed (central hole)	h	(holes are round unless otherwise stated)
shape of hole (suffix)	h-s	e.g. Sch = scalloped (8) with a central hole hole shapes (if not round)	h- h-5 h-W	e.g. Rh-s = round with a square hole (shape given in comments if not standard) hole is the shape of a "5" hole is the shape of a "W"
pierced (holed off centre)	p
more than one hole	p(number)	e.g. p2 for 2 holes
cut, clipped (suffix)	c
uneven (prefix)	u	e.g. uR = uneven Round

mm	millimetres	all dimensions given to the near tenth of a millimetre.
		if between 24.00 and 24.04 shown as 24.0 mm
		if between 24.05+ and 24.14 shown as 24.1 mm
		if between 24.95 and 25.04 shown as 25.0 mm

Measurements of rectangular, oval, uneven triangles and other shapes may require two dimensions: with the token in normal reading position, read horizontal dimension first, vertical dimension second

The normal order used is: Material:Shape:Size

e.g.	tPr/w:Rh-s:38.5	= a translucent red plastic token with white letters, round with a square hole, 38.45 to 38.54 mm in diameter
	B:Sc:34.0	= a brass token, 8 scallops, 33.95 to 34.04 mm in diameter

Dawson City

The Dawson townsite was established after the rich gold find of August 17th, 1896, as one of the creeks draining into the Klondike river. When the extent of the rich strike realized, it became clear to Joe Ladue that a supply base would be imperative and the only logical choice for a steamer landing and townsite was the flat land at the junction of the Yukon and Klondike rivers. Ladue lost no time in establishing himself at the site; it was named Dawson in honour of George Mercer Dawson a Dominion of Canada Geologist who did much of the original survey work in parts of the Yukon. Dawson and the immediate area are said to have had a population of 30,000 gold seekers and camp followers at its peak in 1898-1899. The best claims were staked in late 1896 and early 1897, by those prospectors who were already in the Yukon. Those arriving later had little choice but to spread farther afield to try their luck on new creeks, or to buy into existing claims. In 1899 the rich finds at Nome, Alaska drew many discouraged miners from the Dawson area. The city was incorporated on January 9th, 1902 and settled into a more permanent 1200 persons. Dawson is 536 km (333 miles) north of Whitehorse. A number of original buildings have been restored, to provide attractions for tourists and visitors

Grand Forks

Approximately 18 km (12 miles) southeast of Dawson at the junction of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks, Grand Forks was at the centre of the richest placer claims in the Klondike mining district and at its peak had a population of around 10,000 people. The town was served by the Klondike Mines Railway, a narrow gauge line running from Dawson to Sulphur Springs from 1906 to 1914, when the service was discontinued. Also known as Bonanza its Postal designation. The site was completely obliterated by the gold dredges working the gravel in the area until 1966, when operating costs made this practice unprofitable to continue. The price of gold had remained at $35 an ounce. Since the price of gold was freed in 1971 it has once again become worthwhile to mine for gold in the region.

Old Crow

Old Crow

Alexander Hunter Murray established a trading post in 1847 for the Hudson's Bay Company, near the junction of the Yukon and Porcupine rivers well into Russian territory, which he called Fort Yukon. Twenty years later when the territory became a US possession plans were made to move eastward into British territory. A post was built at Rampart but this was also found to be in US territory so a further move was made to New Rampart, close to the boundary. Later this post was relocated at a site which was called Old Crow. The post is approximately 400 km (270 miles) north of Dawson, and 120 km (80 miles) north of the Arctic Circle.

Whitehorse

Whitehorse came into prominence as a result of the gold rush to the Klondike in 1898, as it was just downstream from White Horse Rapids and Miles Canyon, and at this point on the Yukon river, the river steamers could navigate and take on supplies and passengers for the trip downstream to Dawson and waypoints. The railway from Skagway, 165 km (110 miles) to the south was completed in July of 1900, doing away with the need of hiking over the White or Chilkoot passes. Whitehorse was initially referred to as Closeleigh by the railway builders who preferred that name, however local preferences prevailed and Whitehorse was accepted as the city name. Whitehorse had a short lived boom during World War II with the building of the Alaska Highway and the Canol pipeline by the US Army units. The community was incorporated in 1950 and the name 'Whitehorse' was officially adopted. The capital of the Yukon was moved to Whitehorse from Dawson in April of 1953, as the city was by then the main centre of population and activity. The building of highways has done away with the need of the river steamers which once plied the Yukon river in Canada. Whitehorse has a land area of 420 square kilometres (162 square miles) making it one of the larger municipalities in Canada. It has a current population of around 18,000 persons (1988).
